

NSSL selected as launch distribution partner for Inmarsat's Global Satellite Phone Services

London, 3rd November 2009: NSSL Ltd has been selected as a distribution partner for Inmarsat's Global Satellite Phone Services (GSPS). Inmarsat, the world's leading MSS operator, conducted a thorough review of NSSL's capabilities and business plans, and appointed the company as a distribution partner for its GSPS effective from today.

The first product to be introduced in Inmarsat's GSPS portfolio will be IsatPhone Pro, a global handheld service that is planned for launch at the end of Q2 2010.

NSSL have enjoyed a close relationship with Inmarsat over the years, having been named earlier this year as a Distribution Partner for both BGAN and FleetBroadband services.

Helen Stalker, Commercial Director of Inmarsat GSPS commented:

"Since their appointment as an Inmarsat distribution partner in April 2009, NSSL have become one of our fastest growing partners in the land mobile sector. Building on this success, they were selected as a launch partner for GSPS because they give us access to a number of key clients in our core sectors – government, media, aid and oil & gas."

Bob Chewter, Managing Director of NSSL commented:

"We are thrilled to have been selected as a Distribution Partner for Inmarsat's Global Satellite Phone Services. The news comes as part of our ongoing investment in the close and long standing relationship between NSSL and Inmarsat."
